PADUCAH, KY., THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 9, 1908

TEN CENTS PER WEEK

WILL REPRESENT PRESBYTERY AT GEN'L ASSEMBLY

Capt. James Koger, of Paducah is Chosen Delegate to Kansas City Meeting.

The Rev. J. R. Henry Preaches Eloquent Sermon.

PROSPERITY IS REPORTED

Marion, Ky., April 9.—(Special.)—A well attended session of the Princeton presbytery, of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America, came to a close this afternoon, after Dixon was selected as the place of meeting next October. The Rev. James F. Price, of Marion, and Mr. James Koger, of Paducah, were elected delegates to the general assembly at Kansas City.

The opening sermon was preached by the retiring moderator, the Rev. J. R. Henry, of the Kentucky Avenue church, Paducah. His subject, "The Plan of God in Every Man's Life," was eloquently and convincingly handled. His successor as moderator is the Rev. J. E. McCullom, of Henderson.

During the business session, it was brought out that the presbytery has raised more than its proportion of the funds, and all the churches are prospering spiritually.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT BROADWAY METHODIST.

A series of revival services began last evening at the Broadway Methodist church. The Rev. G. T. Sullivan preached on "The Essential Presence of Christ," enumerating the points of contact necessary between Christ and his people for a successful revival. There was a large attendance for the quiet evening.

Dr. Sullivan will speak tonight in "The Office Work of the Holy Spirit." The services are held in the lecture room of the church at 7:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

LITTLE HOPE OF ANY SORT OF SETTLEMENT HELD OUT.

Louisville, April 9.—(Special.)—The joint committee of the western Kentucky miners and operators are back at work but prospects for a settlement are poor.

GOVERNOR SAYS RIDERS FLEEING FROM KENTUCKY

Louisville, April 9.—(Special.)—Governor Wilson in an interview today said that night riders are on the run. Many of them have left the state. He declared convictions are certain.

Invitations have been extended to tobacco growers forced to leave Kentucky to go to Louisiana.

Cloudy, probably showers tonight or Friday. Warmer Friday. Highest temperature yesterday, 76; lowest today, 46.

Stores Are Closed at Murray This Morning and Men Listen to Sermon Against Night Riding at Revival.

All Sign Resolutions Condemning Practice and Pledge
Their Support to Effort of County Officials.

Murray, Ky., April 9.—(Special.)—Like the militant ministers of the Revolutionary days, the Rev. T. L. Cline, who is holding a revival evangelistic services at the Methodist church at Murray, laid aside his evangelistic work for a time this morning, and preached a strong sermon denouncing night riders. He took as his subject "Man," and he told the story of his civilization under christianizing influences up to this time, emphasizing the barbarism of night riding, and the reaction sure to follow such lawlessness. Every store in the town closed at 8 o'clock, and the church was crowded with men. At the conclusion of the services, the Rev. T. L. Cline called on the men of the congregation to sign a set of resolutions condemning night riding, and not a man failed to put his name down.

The resolutions follow: "We, the undersigned citizens and residents of Calloway county, most deeply deplore the lawless condition now existing in the county, in that clever and honest farmers living in the remote parts of the county without protection are at midnight's hour dragged from their beds by bands of masked and armed men to their great alarm and terror, some of these farmers being most cruelly beat and abused, and we do hereby pledge ourselves in all proper ways to speak and act for law and order and against such lawlessness.

"We most earnestly implore our circuit judge, Hon. Thomas P. Cook, to empanel a grand jury that will not wink at these outrages, that his honor in his charge to the grand jury will demand if there be a single man thereon who, through fear, intimidation, sympathy or other thing can not do his full duty as such grand juror, that he will then and there step aside and let his place be filled by a man who will do his whole duty. We pledge ourselves as friends of the tobacco association in all lawful efforts to control the sale of that product, but as firmly put ourselves on record as being opposed to lawlessness."

SOLDIERS TELL ABOUT NIGHT RIDERS AND THEIR REGALIA IN BLACK PATCH

Calloway County Officials Do Not Ask For Protection For Themselves or Town, But For Planters in Country.

Murray, Ky., April 9.—(Special.)—A trip over the Black Patch clearly shows that the county authorities of Calloway county are acting in concert with the soldiers and displaying most nerve and consideration for the tobacco planters in the distant stretches of the county, than they are most other places where soldiers have been asked for. Calloway county officials said from the start that they do not care for protection for themselves or for the town of Murray, but for the tobacco planters of Calloway county, who have been nightly subject to whippings and worse torment. In most of the other towns where the authorities are not actually in sympathy with the night riders, they are fearful of their own safety and have asked for troops to protect themselves.

This, of course, is partly due to the fact that the counties contiguous to Calloway are not infested, while her exposed side is protected by the Tennessee river, and the authorities have no deep-rooted public sentiment to cope with.

In some of the counties it is believed a few county officials are really night riders.

The presence of troops is having a

Dies Hugging Gold to His Breast.
Evansville, Ind., April 9.—Dr. W. W. Dalley, one of the wealthiest physicians of Southern Indiana, was found dead in bed today at his home at Selvin, hugging his "strong" box, containing his fortune. He did not believe in banks. The box which has not yet been opened is supposed to contain a great amount of silver and gold. Dr. Dalley died from heart disease.

PARDON FOR MOUNT

An effort is being made to secure the pardon of Willis Mount, who killed Willis Nutter, a jockey, in this city about seven years ago, and who is now doing a seventeen year term in the penitentiary. It is said most of the court officials have signed the petition, which will be heard Monday.

BIG STICK AFTER ANARCHISTS WHO WRITE SEDITION

President Sends Special Message to Congress Urging More Laws on Subject.

He Will Refuse Use of Mails to Reds' Periodicals.

BONAPARTE'S OPINION IS SENT

Washington, April 9.—President Roosevelt in a special message to congress today recommended stringent legislation, looking to the suppression of anarchy, particularly in the dissemination of anarchistic literature. He holds the statutes give the president power to prohibit the use of the mails, for the advocacy of murder, arson and treason, and says he will act, but that there should be further legislation. He says no paper published here or abroad should be permitted circulation if it propagates anarchistic opinions. Bonaparte's letter, reviewing the existing statutes with reference to the use of the mails, accompanies the message.

Little Cypress, April 9.—(Special.)—Richard Hall, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of this vicinity, died suddenly yesterday afternoon of heart failure. The funeral will be held tomorrow and interment at Calvert City.

MOLLIE NEEF MUST PRESENT HERSELF IN CIRCUIT COURT

A rule has been issued by Judge Reed for Mollie Neef, who ran a resort at Ninth street and Kentucky avenue, to appear before him and show cause why she should not be punished for contempt. The Neef woman was fined in police court recently for selling beer without a license, which is alleged to be a notation decreed by Judge Reed a year ago, restraining her from allowing the house to be used for any immoral or unlawful purpose.

STOLE CHECK AND MONEY

Mrs. Joe Lambert, of 703 South Ninth street, reported to the police this morning that some one entered her residence last night and stole a handbag containing about $7 in money and a check for $100 given on the First National bank of Cairo, Ill., by the Uphall, Alger Lumber company of Cairo. Payment has been stopped on the check.

A. J. Acheson reported to the police that a skiff belonging to him had been stolen.

ANTI-RACE TRACK GAMBLING BILLS CAUSE HOT WORDS

Albany, N. Y., April 9.—After as thrilling and tempestuous a struggle as has been witnessed here since the 80 cents' gas contest, the senate defeated the Agnew-Hart anti-race-track gambling bills by a vote of 25 to 15. Hughes will, in all probability, call an extra session of the legislature, unless meantime he succeeds in jamming through the bills he wants.

Hughes sent a special message to the legislature, urging the necessity of passing the anti-race track gambling bills. Senator Gandy bitterly attacked the governor, saying he is becoming a common scold. Senator McCarran charged that the message is an insult to the senate, and urged the senate to send the message back to the governor, inviting him to attend to his own business.

SEVEN ALLEGED NIGHT RIDERS ARE ARRESTED BY SOLDIERS IN CALLOWAY FOR WHIPPING FRANK MARTIN---ALL OF THEM ARE IN JAIL.

COUNTY ATTY. N. P. BARNETT.

SHERIFF JAMES A. EDWARDS.

JUDGE WELLS SAYS TROOPS WILL NOT LEAVE CALLOWAY

Better Element of Citizenship
Rallying to Support of County Authorities, Who are Fearlessly Doing Their Duty in Protecting Property.

(By Perry Meldon.)

Murray, Ky., April 9.—Seven men, all young and middle aged, were arrested this morning by a squad of soldiers under command of Captain Givens, charged with being members of the band of night riders that has infested the Tennessee river district. The men captured are Ed Thompson, Bob Duncan, Jake Ellis, Jack Elkins, Dumas Miller, Harden Lovett and Cawjos Elkins. When arraigned before Judge Wells he fixed their bonds at $1,500 and $2,000, according to the seriousness of the offenses each is charged with committing. None was able to give the bail and they were all sent to the county jail. They will be brought out Saturday morning at 11 o'clock for a preliminary hearing before Judge Wells. They are charged with whipping Frank Martin.

No trouble was experienced by the soldiers in making the arrests. The arrests are said to be but a beginning of what will be made within the next two weeks. The information against the men was secured by the court of inquiry conducted by Judge Wells and through the activity of John Holland.

The Situation.

Murray, Ky., April 9.—Murray has been so quiet for the last week that citizens almost feel alarmed, fearing that it really is a calm before a storm. Since the arrival of the mounted soldiers the citizens, who had gathered in the mornings to hear the recital of the story of some one being whipped or visited by night riders, now awaken to learn that the soldiers, who cover the entire county each night, bring reports that night riders have ceased operations.

In a small, dingy room in the "old clerk's office," which is all that remains of Calloway county's historic court house, three men, officers of the law, are sitting in daily session that often extends into the small hours of the morning, taking depositions and piling up evidence that will eventually result in the arrest and conviction of the members and leaders of the Calloway county division of the general order of night riders, and restore law and order in the good county of Calloway. Those men are County Judge A. J. G. Wells, County Attorney Napoleon B. Barnett and Sheriff James A. Edwards. Supported in the execution of their processes and in compelling a cessation of hostilities of the night riders by sheer force, the officials have a brave set of deputy sheriffs, led by the intrepid John Holland, and a detachment of 31 mounted infantrymen of the Middleboro company under Capt. J. L. Givens and Lieut. N. J. Wilburn.

Organization Complete.

When the reporter called at Judge Wells' office the little court of inquiry had just finished taking the deposition of a countryman who lives in the night rider district.

"I have nothing to give out," said Judge Wells, "more than I can tell you that as the investigation progresses we find that the night rider movement is of more serious consequence in Calloway county than was dreamed of when the first efforts were made to suppress it. Instead of being composed of a band of thoughtless boys led by hot-headed leaders, we find it a well-developed organization that has long since passed the boyhood stage.

"The soldiers will not leave Murray soon and the effort to restore peace and punish the perpetrators of outrages will not stop with the next session of the grand jury unless effective work is done by that body, which I hope will be the case."

A great deal of interest attaches to the coming sessions of the grand jury, which convenes when Judge Thomas P. Cook opens court Monday morning. Judge Cook is just from Christian county, where he held court, and has had night rider cases before him on Calloway Grand Jury Venire.

The list from which the panel of the Calloway county grand jury will be selected, was drawn from the jury wheel at the last term of court before night riding had gained impetus in Calloway county. The majority of the men are representative citizens and no trouble is anticipated in securing a panel of twelve good men and true. Nine men can return an indictment. All are farmers except those whose occupations are indicated. The list is: John G. Wells, Shiloh; John C. Olliver, Moody; Noah Chambers, Harris Grove; Charles C. Smith, Kirksey; John H. Keys, former county clerk, Dexter; Thomas W. Pain, Kirksey; J. C. Denham, Harris Grove; A. F. Tidwell, Coldwater; H. C. Hodges, tobaccoist, Brandon; J. H. Clark, Shiloh; J. C. Swift, Kirksey; Ed Owen, banker, Murray; Lucius Curd, Murray; A. B. Lamb, railroad foreman, Murray; W. R. Carson, Kirksey; E. D. Miller, Hazel; J. L. McDaniel, McDaniel; W. D. Edmonds, New Providence; G. W. Overby, Murray; A. J. Slaughter, brick manufacturer, Murray; Alvis Edmonds, Kirksey; Enoch Sherman, Harris Grove; F. P. Stum, banker, Murray; Tom Lamb, Hazel.

BRITISH CABINET TO BE ANNOUNCED MAYBE TOMORROW

Blarritz, April 9.—Herbert H. Asquith is receiving many congratulations on his appointment as premier. He has had several audiences with King Edward, receiving and dining with his majesty. It is understood that some details as to the personnel of the cabinet remained to be settled in London.

Asquith declined to divulge anything with regard to the new cabinet. He started for home at noon after another audience with the king. He will spend the night in Paris and will reach London Friday evening.

Cabinet Changes.
London, April 9.—Herbert H. Asquith who has gone to Blarritz to see King Edward with reference to the formation of a new cabinet, will return to London Friday.

The Chronicle, which may be regarded as good authority, gives the following forecast of the probable changes in the cabinet:

H. H. Asquith, prime minister and first lord of the treasury; David Lloyd George, chancellor; Lord Tweedmouth, president of the council; Earl of Crewe, secretary of state for the colonies; Reginald McGenna, first lord of the admiralty.

BLOODSHED IN LISBON

Paris, April 9.—Rioting has given place to assassination in Lisbon. Several men were shot or stabbed during the night, three are dead. The crimes are political.

Chicago, April 9.—L. D. Kneeland, a wealthy stock broker, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. Stock slump is believed to have been the cause.

SIX ARE KILLED, STRUCK BY TRAIN GOING TO FUNERAL

Chicago, April 9.—Five women while returning from a funeral were killed when the carriage in which they were riding was struck by an electric train on the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad at Maywood, a west end suburb of Chicago, and the driver died a few hours later at the hospital to which he had been taken. The dead are: Mrs. F. Rohloff, aged 65, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Paul Rohloff, aged 29; Mrs. Charles Dressel, Mrs. Minnie Potthoff, and Frank Newman. All were residents of Chicago.

The carriage was cut in two and the rear portion carried several hundred feet along the tracks before the train could be stopped.

The train proceeded after the accident and the first notice of the occurrence was received from Wheaton, several miles further west, when an official of the company telephoned to Maywood asking that an ambulance be sent to the scene.

The wrecked carriage was the second in the line, one having already crossed the tracks. The driver is thought to have driven on the right-of-way in the belief that he had time to cross since the approaching train was plainly visible from the point where the accident occurred.

Railroad Commissioner Mac D. Ferguson was here this morning enroute to Henderson to investigate crossings that are said to be dangerous. He will go from Henderson to Louisville to attend a meeting of the commission. After the meeting Mr. Ferguson goes to Hot Springs to spend several weeks

KOKOMO WOMAN GIVES A FORTUNE

Home of Mrs. Cora B. Miller, Kokomo, Ind.

In the past few years Mrs. Cora B. Miller has spent $125,000 in giving medical treatment to afflicted women.

Sometime ago we announced in the columns of this paper that she would send free treatment to every woman who suffered from female diseases or piles.

More than a million women have accepted this generous offer, and as Mrs. Miller is still receiving requests from thousands of women from all parts of the world, who have not yet used the remedy, she has decided to continue the offer for awhile longer, at least.

This is the simple, mild and harmless preparation that has cured so many women in the privacy of their own homes after doctors and other remedies failed.

It is especially prepared for the speedy and permanent cure of leucorrhoea, or whitish discharges, ulceration, displacement or falling of the womb, profuse, scanty or painful periods, uterine or ovarian tumors or growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness and piles from any cause, or no matter of how long standing.

Every woman sufferer, unable to find relief, who will write Mrs. Miller now, without delay, will receive by mail free of charge, a 50-cent box of this simple home remedy, also a book with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer and how they can easily cure themselves at home without the aid of a physician.

Don't suffer another day, but write at once to Mrs. Cora B. Miller, 5651 Miller Building, Kokomo, Indiana.

Resolutions of Respect.

God in His providence has called from our midst and from our circle Sovereign Daisy Neighbors, who departed from this life March 30, 1908. She has gone to be with the Savior she loves. We, as members of Manchester Grove 29, W. O. W. C., in our mutual effort, have united our hearts in bonds of love. Like warp and wool our hearts and work are woven into the same web; one golden thread is dropped in the removal of one of our beloved members to a better and higher work than W. O. W. C. can ever attain. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of Sovereign Neighbors we have lost an honorable and faithful member and one we shall greatly miss. Be it further

Resolved, That the community has lost a noble woman, a splendid type of true woodcraft worthy of emulation. Be it further

Resolved, That we extend to Mr. Neighbors, husband of deceased, and

Mr. and Mrs. Weisman, father and mother, sisters and brothers our most heartfelt sympathy in the loss of wife, daughter and sister. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be given to newspapers for publication, and a copy of same to the family and one spread on our minutes of Manchester Grove and the charter draped for 30 days.

OLLIE JAMES TIE

CREATING EXCITEMENT ABOUT NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Kentucky Statesman Is Settling Style In Neckwear For His Colleagues In Congress.

Washington, April 9.—One of the principal objects of attention in the house of representatives these days is a new necktie that Ollie James is wearing. Gallery visitors look at it and marvel. The bald and shining dome of Nicholas Longworth, the bounteous bay window of Seneca E. Payne, and the fiery figure of Representative Sulzer pale into insignificance when compared with Ollie James' new tie.

It is the brightest and the reddest object in the world. Members of congress, schooled in veracity, say that they can always tell without looking around in their seats when the popular Kentucky member is approaching because they can hear his necktie sizzle and crackle. It is so hot. On dark and gloomy days it serves to illuminate the house, and it already has given promise of saving Uncle Sam as much every year in electric light expenses as Mr. James' salary amounts to.

For many years Kentucky has been setting the fashion in neckwear for the national congress. When Joe Blackburn was in the senate he wore neckties that made the somber old fossils in that body sit up and take notice. But even Senator Blackburn with his passion for a necktie that made a loud, reverberating noise, never wore a pillar of fire and called it a necktie. It remained for Ollie James, one of the most popular, able and distinguished representatives of the Bluegrass state in the halls of legislation, to set that pace.

Bandit Got Thirty Cents.

A lone bandit, masked and armed with a large-caliber automatic revolver, held up a San Pedro street car, No. 220, en route to the East Side barn shortly after 1 o'clock Friday morning, and robbed the car crew of 30 cents, all the money they possessed.

The man boarded the car near Elysian park as it rounded a curve, and, pointing his gun at the members of the crew, who were both standing near the front controller box, he demanded their money, at the same time telling the motorman to stop the car, which the latter did.

After searching the two men he jumped from the car and disappeared in the darkness.

Several dollars in change, which the conductor had placed under the inside seat of the car, was not found by the robber.

The man is described as being about five feet ten inches in height and of a slender build. He wore a dark suit and a slouch hat pulled down over his eyes and a mask.

While coming from the police station, where they went to make the report on the hold-up, the car crew ran into the man at First and Broadway whom they claim was the robber and chased him for a block, but he boarded a south-bound owl on the Pedro Heights line and escaped. The car would not stop.—Los Angeles Examiner.

ADDRESS MADE TO KENTUCKY PUBLIC BEHALF OF TAFT

The committee appointed at the conference held in Louisville about a month ago by the supporters of William H. Taft for the Republican nomination for president has prepared an address to the Republicans of Kentucky putting forth reasons why the secretary of war should receive the nomination for president. At this conference Republicans were present from every congressional district in the state. In fact, the conference was held on the same day that a conference of the Fairbanks followers was held.

The address, as prepared by the committee, follows:

Without malice and without detraction from the claims of any other candidate we submit, confidently, the name of William Howard Taft, of Ohio, to the Republican voters of Kentucky for their consideration for the Republican nomination for president.

He is available. His past is an open book. There is no smirch upon his leaves. There is no suspicion of his motives. Men may question the wisdom of his judgment or his policy. No man questions his integrity. He was a great judge. He was and is a great executive. It would be tedious to recount his achievements. They are history now.

The people of this country want corporate regulation, and they are in earnest about it. They want wise and just national regulation of the public utilities which have become national public servants, to the extent and insofar as they have become national and the constitution permits. To what has been accomplished and attempted in this direction by the present national administration under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt is due, in a great measure, the administration's enormous popularity.

The people justly expect and insistently demand that this great work shall go forward. Any backward step will be disastrous. Wherefore the nomination must go to someone known to be in accord with the general policies of the present administration.

More than any man alive William H. Taft is regarded, and justly so, as the exponent of the policies of reform which have been inaugurated, executed or attempted by the administration. Without any demagogism he has been the wise and consistent friend of labor, and without in any wise stooping to appeal to race prejudice or passion, he has striven sanely for the uplifting and betterment of the colored race.

And he is fit for the place. In him great ability is joined to special training and wide experience. He unites splendid lawfulness with executive ability of the highest type. He is capable of enormous labor and knows how to work effectively. He is patient in hearing, wise in counsel, firm and temperate in execution. He never shrinks from duty because it is unpopular. He never yields a principle for the sake of success. What seems to him his duty that he does without fear or favor. And he possesses those virtues which every man may practice, and without which no man, however high his station, is worthy of respect—the homely virtues of courage, fairness and honesty.

William H. Taft is both available and fit, and we ask you to aid in his nomination.

SOLDIERS TELL OF NIGHT RIDERS

mask is past he pulls it off and puts the innocent looking handkerchief in his pocket. Instead of the white handkerchief they wear white military scarfs over their left shoulders and across their breasts and back. The captains wear crossed scarfs.

"Regular captains!" The soldier looked incredulous at such ignorance. "Of course they have captains, and they have a commander-in-chief, too, and I think they know who he is."

The word "they" referred indubitably to the officials of the military department. "We'll have him in six months, if we stay on duty. He and the lieutenant commanders have some sense. At any rate, there is somebody with a lot of brains in this night rider organization, and it is a thorough one. You can not do a tour of duty in this section long without finding that out. Under the commander-in-chief are the lieutenant commanders, then the captains, then the precinct commanders, and then the squads.

"I don't know how to account for the fact that night riders seem to be thickly right around the edges of the counties, although Trigg county is pretty thoroughly infested; but you will find them most active around the border between Trigg, Caldwell, Christian and Lyon, and along the edge of Crittenden, Calloway and Marshall."

When asked about the plans for distributing the troops, the soldier said:

"Honestly, I don't know anything about them. Everybody is as mum as an oyster. There are a lot of lies being printed in the papers about what the soldiers are doing, or going to do, or have done, and what I know about, I know are given out wrong, and I think they must be trying to keep the public, and particularly the night riders, guessing."

Foolish Maneuvers.

"We've done a lot of foolish maneuvering around that looked silly to me; and then we have slipped off and done something else that never got into the papers, and I suppose that's the scheme. You can interview all the soldiers in this detail and they can't tell anything, except what they have done, and they won't talk about that. Our own safety depends somewhat on preventing the night riders from getting wind."

"There's a lot of devilment going on that night riders don't do," he continued, changing the drift of the conversation.

"There's a lot of reckless, no-

Such a fellow must needs organize a little band of thugs in his own neighborhood—not night riders, just his own gang—and they go out and do many things for which the night riders have to assume the responsibility. Some of the privates in the night rider band want to be big men among their kind, and they are giving some things away. It is no trouble to pick out the night riders in the community; but it is hard to fix the crime on them. That is what is keeping

WHAT IS CAT FEAR?

The Strange Horror Which Many Persons Feel When a "Harmless Necessary Cat" Comes Near Them. Even Brave Soldiers Are Not Exempt.

"A harmless, necessary cat." In these words Shakespeare has made Shylock describe an animal which may be found in almost every home. The world at large would accept the description as very accurate. The cat is a graceful, amiable, inoffensive creature, associated with domestic scenes.

One thinks of it as purring by the hearth, an emblem of homelike comfort, the gentle companion of maiden ladies. Its only depredations are directed toward the mice, which make the maiden ladies nervous. Therefore, it is not only a pet, but a protector.

An Intense Repulsion.

Curiously enough, however, there are many persons who do not share this kindly feeling toward the cat. In these the presence of a feline excites a sort of nervous agitation which ranges all the way from dislike to aversion, and even to an actual terror so great as to induce convulsions.

Thus, there are some who simply do not like cats, and do not care to have them around. Others detect them and drive them from the house. Still others feel so intense a form of repulsion as to be unable even to look upon a cat without shuddering, and almost to faint if a cat should brush against them.

Persons who are affected in this way to an extreme degree are so acutely sensitive as to make them conscious of the presence of a cat even before the cat is actually seen.

Scientists call it "Aelurophobia." This peculiar form of neurosthenia or nervous agitation, was long ago observed and noted. A few years ago it was scientifically studied by Dr. Weir Mitchell, who called it "cat fear." Professor Harry Thurston Peck coined for it the Greek compound word "Aelurophobia," which Dr. Mitchell accepted, and which is now generally used by writers on the subject.

It might be thought that cat fear is peculiar to neurotic patients, to persons suffering from nervous debility, and perhaps to fanciful women. But the strange thing about cat fear is that it affects not only men, but many men in the full vigor of health,—men, in fact, who are noted for reckless courage.

When Napoleon Shivered.

Thus, the French statesman, Benjamin Constant, relates that on one occasion he found Napoleon shivering in his tent, his face blanched to a deadly pallor, and great beads of sweat standing out upon his brow. The hero of fifty battles was so shaken by terror as to be almost on the verge of syncope.

"What is it?" demanded Constant in alarm.

"A cat! a cat!" cried out the Emperor. "There's a cat somewhere in the tent!"

A hasty search was made, and at first it seemed as though the Emperor had been mistaken; but presently the cat was discovered sound asleep behind a screen.

When Lord Roberts Lost His Nerve.

The greatest English soldier now alive, Lord Roberts, is also subject to cat fear. This virile, sane, well-balanced soldier, the hero of Candahar and the Conqueror of the Boer Republic, who has faced with perfect coolness both Afghan bullets and the sure marksmanship of the Transvaal riflemen, will flee the presence of a "harmless, necessary cat."

The story is told of how once at a splendid banquet at which Lord Roberts was the guest of honor he was seen, in the festivities, to shudder and grow pale. His titled host whispered to him anxiously:

"Are you ill?"

"No," replied Lord Roberts, greatly agitated; "but there must be a cat in the room."

"I think you are mistaken," said his host, wondering.

"I cannot be mistaken," returned the great soldier. "There is a cat—I feel it. If you will pardon me I will leave the room."

He rose hastily and went into an adjoining apartment. The servants were assembled and a search was made. In a remote corner of the banquet hall was found a kitten. It was removed and then Lord Roberts once more took his place at the table. This strange obsession has been variously explained. Some would think it due to prenatal influence. The present writer is inclined to think that cat fear is analogous to snake fear.

Is Cat Fear the Same as Snake Fear? We may lay it down as a general proposition which will hardly be disputed, and that all white races have an inborn horror of the serpent.

This horror can never be eradicated. It is in the blood. Moreover, it has nothing to do with the fear inspired by the serpent's power to harm and kill, for it is excited just as much by the non-venomous as by the venomous snake. In fact, it is not so much a fear as an indescribable loathing.

The mere dread of injury is a wholly different sensation, and this dread of injury is all that the dark-skinned races feel. Thus, a Hindu shuns a cobra, and is terrified by its presence; but he is terrified in precisely the same and to the very same extent at the approach of a man-eating tiger. In both cases the quality of his emotion is identical.

On the other hand, as Kipling has noted in "Kipling," the white man does not shun the snake because he is afraid of it; but because it makes him sick and faint even to look upon it.

Now, the particular loathing which is excited in all white persons by the serpent, extends to creatures, or even to inanimate objects, which resemble or suggest the serpent.

The Dread of Writhing Things. Thus, most of us will shudder and shrink back when a large eel is thrown, writhing at our feet. We know perfectly well that it is not a snake. Yet, we do not like to touch it, and most of us do not care to eat it.

As to objects that are inanimate, we all know that many of them are utterly condemned when we call them "snaky." Snaky locks, snaky ringlets, snaky eyes, snaky movements—these are a score of such expressions, which mean that we regard with repulsion the things to which they are applied. Coming to the point now, a little reflection will show that a cat is essentially a snaky creature. Most of us do not realize this, because we lack the observing eye and the habit of comparison, we are not ultra-sensitive.

But just watch a cat as it moves about at ease, as it lies in the sun, or as it curves itself in its usual position when about to sleep. Its stealthiness, its sinuosity, the undulations of its lithe body, are all closely comparable with what we notice in the snake.

If the cat has glossy fur, and if it be barred with stripes, there are moments when the resemblance is so striking as to almost make us shiver. There are many who feel this at times, but only in a momentary way and in a special mood.

Others, however, are always conscious of it, or, at least, they are conscious of a feeling of repulsion which they cannot explain, but which in all probability represents the serpent-dread, the loathing of the snake and of everything that suggests the snake, even when one's mind is not aware of the underlying reason.

It is the dread which explains the antipathy to cats which was felt by Napoleon and Lord Roberts, and which is felt by many others of less note, and in a greater or less degree. We may call it cat-fear, if you like; but in the last analysis, it is a secondary manifestation of snake-fear. To name it more exactly, it should be called "cat-horror," since it is far more overwhelming, more instinctive, and more profound than any fright which other apparently more alarming creatures cause.

Those who would interpret the Bible with strict literalness may hold that it springs from the original curse laid on the serpent in the Garden of Eden; "Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed. Upon thy belly thou shalt go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life. And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed. He shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."—The Scrap Book.

"Man," didactically began Professor Broadhead, "is the only animal that laughs." "Eh—yah!" broke the Venerable Grouse. "And that's 'cuz he is the only animal that owes money to another animal, and is therefore obliged to laugh whenever the latter animal gets off his favorite funny story."—Puck.

BOMB THROWER ADMITS CRIME

Selig Silverstein Improvised Bomb to Kill Police.

Approaching Death Forces His Hand and He Tells Story of Union Square Tragedy.

KNEW GOLDMAN AND BERKMAN

New York, April 9.—With the death meted out to him by his own hand less than a day or a night away, Selig Silverstein, the Union Square bomb thrower, has confessed to the police.

And this confession shows that it was a plain, cheap hand-rolled cigarette that stood that day between some thousands of persons and the destruction that Silverstein had planned for the police.

Also it proves that the deluded man went to Union Square with murder in his heart.

Fourth Deputy Police Commissioner Woods now has in his possession the confession which Silverstein made Friday in the prison ward of Bellevue Hospital, to the detective who has been his pretended attendant.

Sitting beside the frightfully injured man last Friday afternoon, the detective told him that spinal meningitis had set in and that even if he could survive the wounds made by his bomb, he must die in a little while of the disease. Silverstein then decided to talk and told the detective that he made the bomb himself, using a brass ball of the top of a brass bedstead and filled with broken nails, nitroglycerine and gun powder.

"Then," said the anarchist, "I took my bomb with a piece of string for a fuse and walked over to the park. When I got there I put the fuse inside the little hole in one side of the round knob. And then I saw a policeman who had beaten me and I walked over to where he stood and sat down upon the fountain.

Cigarette—Explosion. "And what happened then, my friend?" asked the policeman attendant.

"Why, I didn't intend to set off the bomb until more policemen came around. But I was excited and I rolled a cigarette and lit it to stop my nerves. I was going to use it, too, to light the fuse of the bomb when the time came.

"Then I took the bomb out of my pocket and held it behind my back, in my right hand. I held the cigarette in my left hand, and then I got excited again and put my left hand behind me, and the light of the cigarette caught onto the fuse of the bomb, and before I knew it, and the next I knew I was lying on the ground, with many policemen over me and a dead man at my side."

"Did you know the man lying dead beside you?" queried the officer.

"No."

"Do you know Alex Berkman?"

Invited to Hades. "Yes, I know him, and I know Emma Goldman."

"But Berkman says he doesn't know you."

"Well, I know him and he knows me."

"Was that the first bomb you ever made?"

"No, I made one other."

"When was that?" the policeman asked. But the dying man became suddenly suspicious.

"You want to know too much," he snapped. "You go to hell."

In the hospital tonight, it was said that Silverstein would die of meningitis within forty-eight hours at the most. Had this disease not attacked him, he would probably have recovered from his wounds.

NO DISEASE ON MONEY.

Physician Declares It Foolish to Consider it a Medium of Transmission.

Dr. A. H. Doty, health officer of this port, who for years has been making a study of infectious diseases, and especially the medium of their transmission, does not agree with the theorists who contend that money is a transmitter of disease.

Dr. Doty said yesterday that, while bacteriological examinations were presented to show that different forms of bacteria were found on money, practical and careful observation had proved that infection was caused and epidemics were spread in nearly all instances by personal contact with infected persons, and more especially with ambulant cases, rather than through the handling of money and clothing.

Concerning the current agitation on money as an agent of disease, Dr. Doty said:

"The theory that money acts as a medium of infection is a plausible one, particularly as it deals with an agent which is being constantly transmitted from one person to another and among all classes of people. Clothing, rags, merchandise, cargoes of vessels, etc., are all regarded as means by which disease is commonly transmitted.

"This belief is popular because it offers an explanation of outbreaks of infectious disease the origin of which is unknown. Modern sanitation, however, does not regard as valuable theories which are unsupported by fact of practical experience. The theory that money acts as a medium carries with it no satisfactory or even reasonable proof. It is true that from time to time the results of bacteriological examination are presented to show that different forms of bacteria are found on money. No one who is familiar with the subject doubts this, but the same organisms may be found at almost any time on our hands, on stair railings and all exposed places. These bacteria are as a rule harmless, and some of them are beneficial to mankind. Even from a bacteriological point of view there are reasons why money would not be likely to transmit disease. However, this question must be decided principally by reliable statistics and the results of practical experience.

Whoever may be inclined to investigate this subject in a reasonable way and will visit the Treasury Department at Washington, where an enormous amount of old and filthy paper money is being constantly handled and rehandled, or will seek information from bank officials, will find that those connected with this work do not contract infectious disease any oftener than any one else.

"There is no reason why persons thus employed may not contract infectious disease, because they are subject to the same outside exposure that others are, but this furnishes no proof that money is the medium of transmission. It is rather to be regarded as a coincidence. There is probably no doubt that in rare instances money, like other things, may act as a means of transmitting disease, but it is so uncommon that we must not give it undue consideration, for there are so many other considerations with which we must deal in protecting the public health that constitute a real menace that we should rather devote our energies to these than to conditions which are based on theory. The fear that money transmits disease is, I am quite sure, due to the fact that it is quite frequently old and filthy. While this is unpleasant in many ways, it does not indicate the presence of pathogenic organisms—that is, the germs which transmit infectious disease."—New York Tribune.

SENSATIONAL IN SPIKE OF HIMSELF.

For conservatism that rears back in the face of sensational facts, commend us to the Murray correspondent of the Courier-Journal. He says:

"Everything is quiet. In fact the reports sent out from Paducah in regard to conditions in Calloway county have been greatly exaggerated. Several weeks ago a few barns were burned in different parts of the county. Recently several men have been taken out and flogged."

We assume then that no one has been murdered by the night riders in Calloway county.

The Kentucky State Journal says: "Dr. Bruner laughed at the list of Taft names in yesterday's paper and said that some of them were his best lieutenants but he 'took a dare' when asked to name them. The doctor is evidently whistling like the boy who went through the graveyard—to keep his courage up."

MR. TAFT AND THE LABORING MAN.

While in the city attending the banquet of Democracy's immortal nineteen Saturday night T. E. Barkworth, of Jackson, says the Detroit Free Press, declared that three things militate against the candidacy of Secretary Taft. First, the fact that he is favored by the man who is now president. Second, the attitude of the laboring men. Third, the attitude of the colored voters.

The first, which is a source of strength rather than weakness, and the last, whose title to serious consideration is to be doubted, may be dismissed. What about the second?

That there will be an attempt to appeal to the prejudice of laboring men to Mr. Taft's detriment has many times been asserted. So far as data is now available, it seems that the only ground on which such appeal can be based is discovered not in any administrative or personal action taken by Mr. Taft, but in a strictly judicial action of his while on the federal circuit bench at Cincinnati.

It was in 1894 during the great railroad strike that originated at Pullman. The Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad was then in the hands of a receiver appointed by the court and hence under direct control of the federal government, which was responsible for the safety and proper conduct of the road in the interest of its creditors.

Eugene Debs, then head of the American Railway Union, sent F. W. Phelan, of Oregon, to Cincinnati to stir up a sympathetic strike. On application Judge Taft forbade all persons from interfering with the traffic of the road, intimidating its employees or inducing them to abandon their duties.

Judge Harmon, frequently mentioned as a possibility for either the presidential or vice-presidential nomination by the Democrats, applied for a like order on behalf of the Cincinnati Southern railroad, also in the hands of a receiver, based upon exactly the same state of facts, and got it.

Phelan was afterward held for contempt, the charge being that he maliciously incited employees to violate the orders of the court, interfered with the constitutional guarantee of personal rights, conspired to cause a breach of contract between road and shippers, obstructed the United States mails and defied the authority of the federal government.

After six months in jail, Phelan acknowledged that he had done all these things and more. He had found the employees contented and prosperous. Acting on orders from Debs, he had incited a disastrous rupture regarding the restraining order.

On getting back to the strikers after serving his sentence, he found them starving and in deep suffering. He went to Judge Taft, declaring that he would gladly go to jail for years if he could undo what he had done, and asked the judge to help reinstate the men. This Judge Taft at once did, the roads acting upon his request.

That same decision was afterward invoked as a precedent by the firemen against the Washash as establishing the right of labor to organize and its privilege within the law and right to have officials act for it where an organization existed. The firemen won because the Taft precedent was accepted.

That Mr. Taft's personal attitude toward labor is sympathetic and liberal scarcely needs assertion, and it is inconceivable that an attack based on something he did while acting under the laws in a judicial capacity can be effective, particularly when it is known that he is an outspoken advocate of the bill for modifying the law under which injunctions are now issued in litigation growing out of labor disputes.

From a curious scholar's lore he drew fantasies with which to torment his victim. We heard of all the witch, warlocks, incubi, succubae, harpies, devils, imps and hauntings of Avicenna, from all the teachings of history, sacred and profane, Hindoo, Egyptian, Greek, mediaeval, Swedenborg, Rosicrucian, theosophy, theology, with every last ounce of horror, mystery, shivers and creeps squeezed out of them. They were gorgeous ghost stories, for they were told by a man fully informed as to all the legendary and gruesome details. At first I used to think he might have communicated it more effectively. Then I saw that the cool, drawing manner, the level voice, were in reality the highest art.

He told his stories in a half amused, detached manner, which imposed confidence more readily than any amount of earnest assertion. The mere fact of his own belief in what he said came to matter little. He was the vehicle by which was brought accurate knowledge. He had read all these things and now reported them as he had read. Each man could decide for himself as to their credibility. At last the donkey engine was cleared and reinstalled at the cliff. The plunger built under her a fire of black walnut, Captain Selover handed out grog all around, and we started her up with a cheer just to see the wheels revolve.

Next we half buried some long latches, end up, to serve as bits for the lines, hitched our cables to them and joyfully commenced the task of pulling the Golden Horn pieces, by piece up the side of the cliff.

The stores were badly damaged by the wet, and there was no liquor, for which I was sincerely grateful. We broke into the boxes and arrayed ourselves in various garments—which speedily fell to pieces—and appropriated gimcracks of all sorts. There were some arms, but the ammunition had gone bad. Perdona out of forty or fifty misfires got one feeble spitter and a tremendous bang which blew up his piece, leaving only the stock in his hand. A few tinmed goods were edible, but all the rest was destroyed. A lot of hard woods, a thousand feet of chain cable and a fairly good anchor might be considered as prizes. As for the rest, it was foolishness, but we hauled it up just the same until nothing at all remained. Then we shut off the donkey engine and put on dry clothes. We had been quite happy for the eight months.

It was now well along toward spring. The winter had been like summer, and with the exception of a few rains of a week or so we had enjoyed beautiful skies. The seals had thinned out considerably, but were now returning in vast numbers ready for their annual domestic arrangements.

Our Sundays we had mostly spent in resting or in fishing. There were many deep sea fish to be had, of great palatability, but small gameness. They came like so many leaden weights. A few of us had climbed some of the hills in a half hearted curiosity, but from their summits saw nothing to tempt weariness. Practically we knew nothing beyond the mile or so of beach on which we lived.

Captain Selover had made a habit of coming ashore at least once during the day. He had contented himself with standing aloof, but I took pains to seem to confer with him, so that the men might suppose that I, as mate, was engaged in carrying out his directions. The dread of him was my most potent influence over them.

During the last few days of our wrecking Captain Selover had omitted his daily visit. The fact made me uneasy, so that at my first opportunity I sculked myself out to the schooner. I found him, moist eyed as usual, leaning against the mainmast doing nothing.

"We've finished, sir," said I. He looked at me.

"Will you come ashore and have a look, sir?" I inquired.

"I ain't going ashore again," he muttered thickly.

"What?" I cried.

"I ain't going ashore again," he repeated obstinately, "and that's all there is to it. It's too much of a strain on any man. Suit yourself. You run them. I shipped as captain of a vessel. I'm no dock wallop. I won't do it for no man."

I gasped with dismay at the man's complete moral collapse. It seemed incredible. I caught myself wondering whether he would recover tone were he again to put to sea.

"Man, you must!" I cried at last. "I won't, and that's flat," said he and turned deliberately on his heel and disappeared in the cabin.

I went ashore thoughtful and a little scared. But on reflection I regained a great part of my ease of mind. You see, I had been with these men now eight months, during which they had been as orderly as so many primary schoolboys. They had worked hard, without grumbling, and had even approached a sort of friendliness about the campfire. My first impression was overruled. As I looked back on the voyage with what I took to be a clearer vision I could not but admit that the incidents were in themselves trivial enough—a natural excitement by a superstitious negro, a little talk that meant nothing. It must have been the glamour of the adventure that had deceived me—that and the unusual stage setting and costuming. Certainly few men would work hard for eight months without a murmur, without a chance to look about them.

In that of course I was deceived by my inexperience. I realized later the wonderful effect Captain Selover threw away with his empty brandy bottles. The crew might grumble and plot during the watch below, but when Captain Ezra Selover said work they worked. He had been saying work for eight months. They had from force of experience obeyed him. It was all very simple.

JAPANESE SNAPSHOTS

The Funny Things One Sees

in

By

MARSHALL P. WILDER

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The streets in Japan are fascinating, overflowing as they are with life and color. The children are as the sands of the sea, and seven times out of ten a child has a smaller one strapped to his or her back. There is no distinction, boys playing nurse quite as frequently as girls. I contrasted their cheerfulness and evident pleasure in performing this duty with the outraged dignity of an American boy of 10 or 12 obliged to carry a baby about for a morning or afternoon.

The children are put out of the houses early in the morning, when the mothers sweep, dust and polish everything to an immaculate cleanliness, and the little nomads live and play, and apparently eat all their meals in the streets.

The shops are open to the streets, and closed at night with wooden shutters. At the back of every shop may be seen the paper covered sliding screen leading into the little home. This screen is almost invariably open, disclosing the entire family group. The hair-dresser, building up the wonderful coiffure—rolled over tiny rollers, and greased with cocoa-oil to a shining blackness—affected by the Japanese women; shampooing, sewing, writing, reading—every occupation is in full view of the passer-by.

Speaking of shops and making oneself understood, I felt that after my experience in the Hawaiian tongue I was fully justified in letting the Japanese severely alone. I never got much beyond the two words, "O-hay-o" (good morning) and "sayonara" (good-by). The "good morning" is pronounced as near like Ohio as they can make it.

I suppose if they wanted to bid anyone "good night" they would say Philadelphia.

But I did try to learn something about the Japanese money and its various divisions, only I had had luck from the start. I got hold of the wrong customer, or else he did.

I started in to buy some sandals and a hat. I know that one yen, at par, is worth almost exactly 50 cents American money, and that ten rin go to a sen, and 100 sen to a yen. But the old man who waited on me either knew no more than I did, or was exploiting some new and original method of his own; for he held up the sandals in one hand and the hat in the other, the while he ejaculated in a low guttural: "Mon! mon!"

"Oh, yes! I gotta da mon!" I replied, pulling out my purse, and spreading some Japanese coins in my palm.

But he shook his head and held up his forefinger, saying: "Shy!"

"Oh, I'm shy one, am I? Well, take this!" and I threw the largest coin I had into the little basket before him. But this seemed to excite him. He wagged his forefinger at me and cried: "Bunkyu!" at the top of his voice.

"Bunco me? I guess not, my friend!" I replied. "I'm from New York!"

At this he threw down the hat and sandals, and, shaking his hands as though he were trying to get rid of soap-suds, cried: "Shi-mon! shi-mon!"

"Oh, I was shy one, and now I'm shy the whole business! Well, I don't think you and I will make a deal to-day!" and sweeping the coins into my purse, I was preparing to be gone.

Suddenly he leaned forward, thrust his face close to mine, and in the most indescribable manner hissed through his teeth: "Ichi-bu! ichi-bu!"

Well, say! Did you ever play that idiotic game with a six or seven months' old infant, saying Kitcha-booo? The baby lies in the cradle, or on its mother's lap, as the case may be, and you, wishing to make yourself solid with the family, lean over and, assuming a ghastly grin, teeter over toward the infant and then teeter back again, and then teeter forward, sputtering: "Kitcha-booo! Kitcha-booo!"

a-booo!" until it goes into fits or lets out a howl that makes the mother wish that murder was not a punishable offense.

If you have ever indulged in that tender little pastime, then you can have some idea of my frame of mind when the old Jap performed this strange antic. Backing away from him, I shook my head violently and thrust my purse into my pocket; when he plucked me by the sleeve, and with a whine that would have done credit to a Hester street old clothes man, said: "Kanye! Kanye!"

"No, I can't and I'm hanged if I ever will!" and with that I turned away, and the negotiation was at an end.

Now, what do you think was the matter with the old fellow? Why, he was not only a little touched in the upper story, but he knew nothing of the cash system of his country later than the vintage of 1868. He had been left to tend the shop for a few moments, and as usual I felt a victim to the change of circumstances. Let it be said, that, according to Delmar, the standard formerly was, as in China, the small round iron or bronze coins with the square hole in the center which were of three denominations: First, the mon; second, the bunkyu; third, the shi-mon. The shi was an oblong silver coin, and the ichi-bu another; the latter being equal to four shi. Kanye means the era of coinage; but the era on the old coins does not indicate the age of the coin. For example, coins made about 1860 bear the name of the era Kanye.

The manufacture of all these ceased at the beginning of the present era of Meiji, that is to say, the 25th of January, 1868, which was the year when the present emperor assumed sovereign power. The mon is now valued at one rin, and the bunkyu at one and one-half rin. The old gold coins and the oblong silver ones are only to be found in the curio shops.

When her husband dies, even though she may be young and charming, the widow's hair is cut off, and she is doomed for the rest of her life to single blessedness and a cropped head. An old-time custom, which is fortunately dying out, was to blacken a woman's teeth when she got married. So it was hard to tell which was most disgusting—getting a husband or losing one. Every district has its own distinctive marriage ceremony, but the following is the one in general use:

No priest officiates at the marriage ceremony. An elderly couple, called the "go-between," conduct the courtship and assist the bride and groom to perform the rite that makes them man and wife, which consists of nine cups of wine drunk alternately by the bride and groom, who hand them to each other. This is called the "san-san-kudo," literally "three-three-nine," and means that they will share the bitter and the sweet in life's cup together.

Sometimes there are the images of an old man and woman, a couple who lived happily for a hundred years; also a bunch of plum-blossoms, symbol of conjugal happiness.

The bride wears white, the mourning color in Japan, to signify that her old life is ended—for marriage is too often a sort of death-in-life to the Japanese woman. She is virtually the slave of her mother-in-law, and must live only for her husband's family, who exact from her the most abject

REMARKABLE RECORD MADE BY COOPER IN MINNEAPOLIS

The remarkable success that has attended L. T. Cooper during the past year has not been confined to any one locality, but is so widespread that the young man is now a well known figure in most of the leading cities of the country.

Mr. Cooper believes that the stomach is the foundation for most ill health, and claims that his preparation, by regulating the stomach, is a true specific for most diseases. The following extract from the Tribune of Minneapolis gives an idea of the surprising number of people who are accepting Cooper's theory. The article was one of many that appeared during Cooper's stay in Minneapolis, and is as follows:

"The sale of Cooper's preparation is now phenomenal in this city, and an estimate made today seems to indicate beyond all doubt that it will equal the large figures reported from submission. She marries at 16 and begins a life of drudgery that makes her an old woman at 30 or 35, and her only gleam of hope in life lies in her having sons who will marry and place her in the envied position of mother-in-law.

The flowing veil of the western bride is, for the Japanese woman, a large hood made of white wadding, that modestly shades her features. When the ceremony—which is never witnessed by the guests—is completed, she retires and changes her costume; for the wedding kimono once doffed, is never worn again.

When she is re-dressed, she appears at the feast to which guests are bidden. Very wealthy brides retire between each course—sometimes there are nine, sometimes seven or eleven, a regular game of craps!—and reappear in more gorgeous raiment, until you begin to think there's a corner in kimonos.

When the feasting is over, the "go-between" couple conducts them to the bridal chamber and serves them a special cup called the "bed-wine." During the marriage ceremony the bride pair do not drink the nine cups of wine, but merely touch their lips to the cup; for the well-known potency of the sake would have them paralyzed by about the fifth cup, and they'd never get married at all.

BRITAIN MAY BUY 3 WAR SHIPS

Plans Purchase of Brazilian Battle Ships to Head Off Other Powers.

London, April 9.—Interest has been aroused in naval circles by the report that the British admiralty is considering the purchase of the three big battle ships now being built in this country for Brazil at a cost of $9,000,000 each.

It is pointed out that Brazil has no need for such powerful ships, which, in addition to their original great cost, will be expensive to maintain.

It is certain Great Britain will buy these vessels should this be the only way of preventing their falling into the hands of another European power.

Italy is declared ready to sell to Argentina for $20,000,000 the three battle ships Regina Elena, Napoli and Roma. Argentina is thought to be contemplating this naval increase to counterbalance the projects of Brazil.

DIDN'T FIGHT.

Emphatic Denial of Published Stories Made by Mr. Gaines.

Washington, April 9.—Emphatic denial was given on the floor of the house today to the statement appearing in the press today regarding an alleged episode occurring yesterday in the committee on elections of president, vice president and members of congress. Rising to a question of personal privilege Mr. Gaines of West Virginia, chairman of the committee, declared that no efforts of the members were made to do each other bodily harm.

"No such thing occurred," he said, "and nothing like it. There were no blows at all; there were none aimed, none dodged and the situation did not even approach a personal difficulty in any sense whatever."

Mr. Hardwick of Georgia, a Democratic member of the committee, confirmed Mr. Gaines' statement.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS IN ARIZONA.

Bisbee, Ariz., April 9.—Three distinct earthquake shocks were felt at Douglas during last night. The first was at 9 o'clock, the second two hours later and the third and most severe at 3 o'clock this morning. The district between Fronteeras and Douglas appeared to be the center of the earthquake. Houses in Douglas trembled noticeably during the last shock and the little town of Fronteeras was thrown into panic. No damage is known to have been done.

Elks, Notice.

All members of Paducah lodge of Elks will meet at hall at 1:30 p. m. sharp Thursday, April 9, to attend the funeral of Brother John T. Fisher.

Exalted Ruler.

The Evening Sun—10c a Week.

Pittsburg during the thirty days Mr. Cooper spent in that city.

"During the past twenty-two days Mr. Cooper has been in Minneapolis, the sale of his preparation has averaged about two thousand bottles a day. When the amount of medicine disposed of throughout the state is added to this, the amount will be doubled. Therefore, the young man has sold in twenty-two days eighty-eight thousand bottles of his medicine in the state of Minnesota alone, which is a truly remarkable record.

"During the past week so many hundreds of Minneapolis people have been calling to thank Cooper for the good he has accomplished with his medicine, that it is safe to say that his visit will long be remembered by the sick of the city."

We sell the famous Cooper preparation which has made a similar record to the above wherever introduced.—W. B. McPherson.

JUDGE HARMON DECLINES.

Will Not Be Candidate for Governor of Ohio.

Cincinnati, O., April 9.—Judge Harmon, former attorney-general of the United States, who has been frequently mentioned of late in connection with the Democratic nomination for governor of Ohio, gave out a statement in which he says he is not a candidate for the nomination. The statement follows:

"Several other men have been considered and announced for candidates for governor. They are all worthy and capable. It is due to them and to the party, which is soon to assemble in convention, to say that I am not a candidate and could not accept the nomination for governor this year.

"I am fully sensible to the distinction of being mentioned throughout the state and formally endorsed in various counties and districts. I shall not forget these evidences of friendly confidence nor the duty which this additional honor from the Democracy imposes."

VENEZUELAN CASE.

Root Thinks President Will Be Given Power to Act.

Washington, April 9.—The Venezuelan situation was not considered today by the senate committee on foreign relations, although Secretary Root and Solicitor Scott of the state department were both present. The general understanding is that the subject will be taken up with all treaties negotiated at The Hague are out of the way. Root is of the opinion that when the correspondence now before the committee is considered it will suggest that the president should have full authority to treat with President Castro in such a manner as he finds necessary.

QUICK JUSTICE METED OUT.

Philadelphia, April 9.—Quick justice was meted out here today to four policemen arrested Saturday for robbing stores and warehouses on the boats they patrolled in the wholesale district.

NEWS OF COURTS

In Bankruptcy.

Attorneys Crice & Ross were allowed $2,500 by E. W. Bagby, referee in bankruptcy, for services in the Paducah Furniture Manufacturing company case. Certain creditors objected to the claim of $3,500 compensation. The claim of Trustee John Rock for $750 for extra services, was not passed on.

In County Court.

The will of the late Mrs. Ella Beades Wilhelm was filed for probate. She bequeaths to her husband 30 shares of the Register Newspaper company and certain notes accepted in an agreed division of her father's estate. To her children, Ella B. Wilhelm, B. Amanda Wilhelm and James E. Wilhelm, Jr., she leaves all the rest of her estate to be equally divided, the estate to remain in trust until the youngest child attains the age of 21 years, when it is to be divided. The family home on North Fifth street is to be the home of the father and children jointly during the father's lifetime. James E. Wilhelm is made executor of the will and trustee of the estate.

The will of the late George T. Renick, of the Massac section, who died recently at Riverside hospital, was probated. He devised to his brother, W. E. Renick, his interest in the farm of 125 acres. He requests his tobacco to be sold and his debts paid, after which the remainder of the proceeds are to go to his brother, Walter Renick. He leaves his mare to his father and his mules and farm implements to his father and brother. To his sisters, Mattie B. Miller, Marietta Rogers and Willie Ella Thompson, he leaves $100. His father is named as executor, and the instrument was witnessed by Dr. Frank Boyd, Fannie Hunter and May Durr. The will was dated April 3, 1908.

In Police Court.

The cases against T. C. Leech and W. A. Gardner and J. B. Laevison for breach of ordinance were continued until tomorrow.

Emmett Kane, who raised a fight at the Kozy theater night before last, was fined $20 for being drunk and disorderly. He was arrested on a breach of peace charge.

George Vaughan, charged with breach of peace, was dismissed.

Circuit Court.

A heavy grind was put through in circuit court today, a number of convictions and heavy fines imposed and several sent to the penitentiary.

Will McMurray, charged with housebreaking, two years in penitentiary.

Mat Grace, three years in the penitentiary.

Rudy Ingram, grand larceny, 5 years.

Herbert Jones, false swearing, 1 year.

Jimmie Jones, false swearing, 3 years.

Judgment by default was rendered in the suit of the city of Paducah against Hugh Boyle, and his bondsman for a forfeiture of his $1,000 saloon license by reason of his being convicted of selling liquor without a license.

CUSTOMS OFFICIAL.

Of Manitoba Arrested by U. S. Officers of "Undesirables."

Winnipeg, Man., April 9.—Herbert Wright, Canadian customs officer at Emerson, Man., was arrested at Noyes, Minn., today at the point of revolver by United States immigrant officers on a charge of having smuggled into the United States, May French, who had been denied admission to the United States two weeks ago.

He was taken to Crookston, Minn., for trial this afternoon. There is much bitter feeling between the officials of the two governments at Emerson and Noyes.

GIRL STOPS JAIL DELIVERY.

She Seized One Prisoner and Held Him Till Help Arrived.

Murphysboro, Ill., April 9.—Miss Sera Hanson, 17 years old, daughter of Sheriff Sylvester Hanson, interrupted a jail delivery during a storm yesterday. She was awakened by the storm, and, glancing out the window, was surprised to see prisoners climbing down past her window as they escaped from jail. Bravely she seized the feet of one man and held on while she screamed lustily to her parents. Her mother went to her assistance and held the prisoner while Sheriff Hanson rushed into the cell room and prevented seven prisoners from leaving. Six prisoners had effected their escape through a window from which a bar had been prized. Four of the fugitives are negroes.

Dr. Koch in New York En Route to St. Louis.

New York, April 9.—Dr. Robert Koch, the bacteriologist, accompanied by his young and handsome wife, who speaks English a little better than her learned husband, arrived today from Bremen. Dr. Koch has never been in America before, and said that their trip was one of pleasure purely.

On the night of April 11 Dr. Koch will be one of the guests of honor at a banquet given by the German Medical society. Andrew Carnegie will be another guest. Immediately afterward the eminent scientist will start westward, stopping only at Chicago and St. Louis. He wants to get to Japan as soon as possible.

BOURNE'S HOBBY IS RIDDEN HARD

Oregon Senator Can't See Anybody in it But Roosevelt.

Declares President Must Take Second Elective Term and He Has Money To Bet On It.

SOMETIMES HE HAS FOLLOWERS

Washington, D. C., April 9.—Is Senator Bourne and his "second elective term" a joke or is there something in the man and the idea?

Is he talking just to hear his own conversation, or is he gifted with second sight?

Is he merely a self-advertiser, or is he the apostle of a political gospel that the Republican party will have to accept before the Ides of June?

These are questions that half the politicians in the capitol are asking of the other fifty per cent. What is the answer? For the most part those who talk about the senator from Oregon are prone to laugh good naturedly at his insistence that Roosevelt is bound to be the nominee of the party again in spite of himself, and to remark that "it is just another hobby" that the senator is riding. If he were not worth two or three million dollars, Bourne would probably be called a "crank."

Despite the magnificent imported elgards that he forces upon his hearers in reckless profusion, the political gossip about town are inclined to make for shelter whenever they see the Oregonian coming. They know that if he once gets hold of their coat tails he will talk them deaf, dumb, blind and paralyzed on Roosevelt, so they usually find flight the part of wisdom. How anyone on earth can consider the possibility of a Republican candidate other than the president himself, Bourne cannot understand. He is willing to bet any amount of money, up to the dizzying thousands, that Taft will not get 350 votes in the convention. It was only a few days ago that through a monthly magazine in Boston, Bourne handed over $1,000 to Judge Norcross, of Nevada, winner of contest of authors on the "Best Reasons for Roosevelt's Re-election." If he is ready to spend real money in this fashion to back up his belief in the continuance of Rooseveltism for four years more, Bourne cannot very well be charged with insincerity. If he talks a good deal with his mouth, it must also be

Kinetic Energy

Kinetic is a good word. It means "power to make things go." A fat bank account, a rock on the edge of a hill, a barrel of gunpowder, and SCOTT'S EMULSION all contain "kinetic energy," so the professor tells us.

Power is stored up in

admitted that he is not averse to talking some with his pocketbook.

In the face of all the amusement that members of congress and newspaper writers have been getting out of Bourne and his hard-riden hobby, there's no denying the fact that within the last few months he has won a great many followers. An old feature of the case, also, is that the whole country seems to have taken turns—or spasms—at following his lead. Every one in about so often, perhaps every three or four weeks, the papers in various parts of the United States from ocean to ocean are filled with articles forecasting Roosevelt's nomination and reelection. Perhaps it is some speech of the president; perhaps some message sent to congress from the white house which brings the country up short with a gasp of astonishment. No matter what it is or how it originated, the country at large seems suddenly to convince itself that there is no other man who could be nominated and elected and be trusted to continue the policies so successfully inaugurated by the president. The claims of Taft as Roosevelt's successor then shrink to the vanishing point and Bourne goes around the capitol looking as cheery as a new feather. Within a few days the Roosevelt spasm appears to fade away and the followers of Taft and the other candidates take on new hope. But the subsidence of the Roosevelt waves do not worry Bourne in the least.

"You wait. Before the convention meets the country will come to my way of thinking and will stay there," he asserts. "The country at large wants the Roosevelt policies continued and wants Roosevelt to continue them. Roosevelt needn't think he is bigger than the people who put him in office. I'm enough of an American to think that the will of the people is supreme. If he is not bigger than the voters of this country, he will obey them and take another term. If he is bigger than they are and is their master, instead of being their servant as I believe he is, he will spurn the second elective term and force down the popular throat a man the people do not want. But I have no doubt of the result. Just mind my words and pin your faith to Roosevelt for another term."

Bourne is not bashful. He talks just this way to President Roosevelt himself, upon whom he calls regularly once or twice a week.

Anarchy.

The United States government is determined to stamp out anarchy. Recent outrages have served to bring the matter to a climax, making it clear also that through the federal power alone can the pest be successfully dealt with.

Paradoxically enough, anarchistic leaders are advocating "organization" of their forces to combat the efforts of the government, whereas one of the principal tenets of their creed is, "No organization." It is the close affiliation of anarchists in widely separated sections of the country that makes the movement dangerous. Heretofore the scattered fanatics were not considered a great menace, but with the formation of a definite force against law and order, the federal government sees the necessity of laying a heavy hand upon the whole cult.

A precedent was recently established by the postmaster general in debaring La Question Sociale, an anarchistic publication of Paterson, N. J., from the United States' mails. This means that the government hereafter will exercise supervision over the Red's literature. Under direction of Postmaster General Meyer, Third Assistant Postmaster General Lawshe is now critically examining every socialist and anarchistic periodical printed in the United States, as well as those from foreign countries circulated here. Scores of these sheets will doubtless be deprived of the use of the mails.

Postoffice inspectors, cooperating with the secret service, will investigate the antecedents of the men publishing anarchistic newspapers and magazines in this country. If it is found that they are not naturalized citizens, and have been in the United States less than three years, the department of commerce and labor will be informed, and, in accordance with the recent order of Secretary Straus, they will be deported.

W. P. Hazen, formerly a secret service official, is now engaged in running down anarchistic criminals for the department of commerce and labor. It is understood that he is giving particular attention to the band of which Alexander Berkman is the head, "The Anarchist Federation Union," a membership card in which was found on Silverstein, the bomb thrower in the recent Union Square riot in New York.

In addition to these activities, President Roosevelt has recently received from the department of justice recommendations for additional legislation, whereby the federal government may the better cope with the evil.

Representative Bennett, of New York, early in the session, introduced an amendment to the immigration act providing for the deportation of aliens who may commit crimes, up until the time when they actually become naturalized. It failed of passage, but now he will endeavor to get it through in another form.

In this connection, Secretary Straus gave utterance a few days ago to a significant warning, in receiving members of the Inter-Collegiate Civic League. He declared that settlement workers and philanthropists should take heed that in their enthusiasm for betterment of economic and social conditions they absorb no dangerous socialist or anarchistic tenets.

Watermelon Lore.

The humorists always associate the African with the watermelon, assuming that the taste of the colored man for his favorite dainty arises from his life in the Southern States, where the melon vine grows like a weed.

As a fact, however, the African taste for the watermelon is hereditary. The vine is a native of Africa, where it is found wild in the great central plains of the continent, and has been cultivated for many ages.

In Egypt the melons grown along the Nile rival those of Southeastern Missouri.

The melons mentioned by the Israelites as being among the good things they had in Egypt were undoubtedly watermelons, for in the wall paintings about the time of the exodus the melon vine is represented, and in one case a long procession of slaves is depicted, each bearing on his shoulder a huge, dark-green watermelon.

Botanists say that varieties of the melon are found in Southern Asia, and some even claim that the plant grows wild in Central and South Africa; but Africa is no doubt the original home of the melon, and in its preference over every other kind of vegetable or fruit the African merely displays a taste that has become fixed in his race by thousands of years of indulgence, for in Central Africa ripe watermelons are to be had every month in the year.—(Washington Herald.)

Uncle Hardacre—I believe in government ownership of all monopolies, especially the railroads. Uncle Backache—I dunno 'bout that. Ever stop to think what the conductors'd be like if they had the hull army and navy backin' 'em up?—Puck.

The hurt resulting from falling in love is said to be painful—for a short time.

OLD SORES KEPT OPEN BY BAD BLOOD

Whenever a sore refuses to heal, it is because of bad blood. If the place existed simply because the flesh was diseased at that particular spot, it would be an easy matter to apply some remedy directly to the ulcer that would kill the germ; or the diseased flesh might be removed by a surgical operation and a cure effected. But the very fact that old sores resist every form of local or external treatment, and even return after being cut away, shows that back of them is a morbid cause which must be removed before a cure can result.

The impurities in the blood which keep old sores open, come from different causes. A long spell of debilitating sickness, which breeds disease germs in the system, is a common source. These morbid impurities get into the circulation, and the blood becomes a polluted, infectious fluid, which, instead of nourishing the fibres and tissues of the flesh, irritates and ulcerates them, and continually discharges its impurities into the open sore, and prevents the place from healing. Another cause for bad blood is the retention in the system of the refuse and waste matters of the body. Those members whose duty it is to carry off the useless accumulations, become dull and sluggish in their action and leave their work imperfectly done, and this fermenting matter is absorbed into the circulation. The weakening or polluting of this vital fluid may also come from the results of some constitutional disease, while persons who are born with an hereditary blood taint are very apt to be afflicted with sores and ulcers.

Local or external applications can not cure an old sore, because they do not reach the blood. Such treatment may reduce the inflammation, lessen the pain and discharge, and tend to keep the place clean, and for this reason should be used, but it can do no real good toward effecting a permanent cure.

S. S. S. cures sores and ulcers by purifying the blood. It removes every impurity and taint from the circulation, and completely does away with the cause. When S. S. S. has cleansed the blood, the sore begins to heal, and it is not a surface cure, but the healing process begins at the bottom; soon the pain and inflammation leave, the discharge ceases, and the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable, made only from roots and herbs, and is an absolutely safe medicine for persons of any age. Under the purifying and tonic effects of S. S. S. the system is built up, and those whose health has been impaired because of the drain and worry of an old sore, will be doubly benefited by its use. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

1,100 SALOONS ARE VOTED OUT

And 36 Illinois Counties Are Totally Dry as Result.

By Majority 28,000 For Entire Territory Voting—Total Number of Dry Townships in State 1,228.

THE WET TOWNS NUMBER 323

Chicago, April 9.—As a result of yesterday's local option election thirty-six counties out of the 102 in Illinois are now entirely anti-saloon territory, while nineteen others are anti-saloon with the exception of one township in each.

Twenty-seven of the totally "dry" counties voted on the question yesterday and nine decided to abolish the saloon last November.

According to latest returns 886 townships voted against saloons and 304 townships favor saloons. The total number of "dry" townships in the state, including those which held elections last November, is now 1,228, and the total "wet" townships 323.

The most reliable estimates place the number of saloons voted out of business yesterday at 1,100 and the net anti-saloon majority cast in the entire territory voting at 28,000.

In all 84 counties held elections yesterday and in that territory it is estimated that there are now about 2,000 saloons. The result of the election therefore, will compel more than one-third this number of saloons to go out of business within thirty days.

other occasions. It is said by those in authority that his charge to the jury Monday will be more exhaustive than that of Judge Reed before the McCracken county grand jury, the conditions with which he has to contend being more severe. However, one feature of Judge Reed's charge touched a popular chord in Murray, and that was the point where he called on any member of the jury, who could not do his whole duty, whether through fear, sympathy or other complicity, to vacate the panel and no questions would be asked him unless he cared to state his reasons for his actions. Representative citizens are outspoken in the demand that the same test shall be put to the Calloway jury Monday.

In his talk yesterday afternoon Judge Cook convinced those who heard him that he would do his full duty. From sources semi-official it was learned that there is positive evidence that the Calloway contingent of the night riders is a branch in good standing of the general order, which has an organization equal to any standing army with a commander-in-chief, division chiefs, captains and squad leaders, and that the indictment of at least one man, who does not live in the county, but whose mysterious visits and their import are known, is probable.

Since the arrival of the soldiers here not one word has been heard from the night riders by way of warning or threat, for the policy under which the minions of the law operate makes it extremely dangerous for any unlawful gathering to be held. A gentleman from the country stated yesterday that the boys in blue seem to be everywhere at once, and often appear to bob up from the very bowels of the earth. Under the instruction of Judge Wells and his assistants, they visit the section where trouble is most likely to occur, and several instances have been reported where they guarded the homes of men who had reason to believe they were in danger. Last Saturday four of the soldiers protected Henry Pace, one of the first farmers visited by night riders, as he delivered his tobacco to independent dealers. The next morning being Sunday and the soldiers not being on duty in the day time, three of the soldiers decided to remain over all day with Mr. Pace and accompany him to church, or rather some pretty girls they met in the neighborhood. The corporal in charge of the squad returned to Murray with three riderless horses and this gave rise to a rumor that they had met the night riders and three had been killed. The soldiers turned up Monday, coming to town with a load of tobacco.

In several other instances they have given farmers protection, while they delivered their tobacco. In addition to patrolling the public highways a small detachment patrols the tobacco warehouse district, which is near the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis depot. Four private watchmen are also maintained by Griffin & Pitt, Regle contractors.

Deputy's Good Work.
From a reliable citizen it was learned that John Holland, chief deputy to Sheriff Edwards, who lives in Liberty magisterial district, the center of one wing of Calloway county night riders, is doing valiant service in securing evidence, and it is asserted that he has proof sufficient to convict at least 20 men. He is under the instructions of the county court and working with them. Mr. Holland is a fearless officer and is highly praised for his work.

Napoleon B. Barnett, county attorney, whose name, through inadvertence, has not been mentioned in connection with the prosecution, is working in perfect harmony with Judge Wells and Sheriff Edwards and upon him will devolve the responsibility of presenting the evidence gained to the grand jury, as only he and the commonwealth's attorney of the district have access to the grand jury room. Mr. Barnett is a plain lawyer, but knows how to argue facts and law, and will be heard from in the active prosecution.

An Organizer's Fault.

Mr. O. J. Jennings, editor of the Murray Ledger, which in its issue of day will attempt to prove that an organized band of night riders does not exist and will denounce county officers for bringing soldiers into the county, stated yesterday evening in refutation that he is in league with the night riders that his position was misunderstood. Mr. Jennings is also secretary of the executive committee of the Calloway County Tobacco Growers' association and says that a year ago he protested against a certain organizer for the association, whose stories of the "goose neck hoe," etc., had sown the seed of discord in Calloway county, being sent there during the last season, and to gain that point he threatened to denounce the man in his paper before he secured the promise from Guthrie, officials as well as the county officials that the man would be kept away from Calloway. That Mr. Jennings is conscientious in his course is not doubted, but that he underestimates the real situation, is well known to the county officials who have the evidence. Mr. Jennings charges that A. H. Perry was not whipped, as he claimed, and that the story originated by some boys calling him out and striking him a few blows with a brush.

The county authorities have Mr. Perry's affidavit, stating that he was unmercifully beaten by a band of 75 masked men, and that at times he believed his legs had been broken, so heavy were the blows.

The confession of Willie Dyer, a young farmer of near Brandon, that he had been visited by a band of 75 masked men and warned not to deliver his tobacco, but that he had been afraid to report the occurrence to the officers before the arrival of the soldiers, confirms the belief of Judge Wells and other county officials that numerous men were visited and some whipped, but were afraid to inform the officers, before they took hold of the situation and ordered the soldiers into the county.

Change in Sentiment.
During the time that elapsed since my last visit to Murray a marked change in public sentiment has taken place. The county officers are supported by the best citizenship of the county in their efforts to restore order and punish the outlaws, and outside a few men, the only ones now opposing the good officers of the county in their efforts, are men who fear monetary losses and quite a number of candidates for public office on the night rider ticket. A number of men who denounced the action of the county court on the occasion of my previous visit now admit their mistake and are ready to co-operate with any movement that has for its purpose the upholding of the right.

Judge Wells and the other officials who so ably support him are not affected by the jibes of night rider sympathizers, and conscious of being in the right, are hewing to the line.

POINTED SKULLS

Admired by Some Tribes, Who Secure Them by Head Binding.

The egg-shaped heads of some of the natives of Malekula, in the New Hebrides, were once thought to be naturally conical. For that reason scientific men decided that the Malekulans were in the lowest rung of the human ladder.

Later it was found that the conical heads were produced as the Chinese women distorted their feet, binding them in infancy. The egg-shaped head is still in fashion in Malekula, where some extraordinary results are achieved.

"A conical head," says a writer in a National Geographic Magazine, "treats from the forehead in such a manner that one is amazed as to how the owner of this remarkable profile preserves his or her proper senses, such as they are. I could not hear, however, that the custom was supposed to affect the intellect in any way."

"The conical shape is produced by winding strong sinnet cord spirally about the heads of young babies and tightening the coils from time to time. A piece of plaited mat is first put on the head and the cord is coiled over this, so as to give it a good purchase. The crown of the head is left to develop in the upward and backward fashion that is so much admired."

"One fears that the poor babies suffer very much from the process. The child I saw was fretful and crying as if it were constantly in pain; but the mother, forgetting for the moment her fear of the strange white woman, showed it to me quite proudly, pointing out the cords with a smile.

"She has a normally shaped head herself and it seemed that she suffered by her parents' neglect of this important matter, for she was married to a man who was of no particular account. A young girl who was standing beside her had evidently had a more careful mother for her head was almost sugarloaf shaped. It is interesting to know that this well-brought-up young lady had married a chief."

"Do you happen to know where he stands on the prohibition issue?"
"Yes. Before the bar."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

ANGRY BEAR FIGHTS FIRE--GETS SCORCHED WHEN HE SMELLS MAN.

A Yakima Indian, whose name is Tecumseh, who claims that there flows in his veins the blood of the old Yakima chiefs, is a great hunter and annually decamps to the sides of Mount Dakar, where he considers himself unfortunate if he does not succeed in bagging two or three bears and probably a cougar or two. A deer he is sure of, for he knows well the haunts of the forest animals.

Tecumseh tells a good joke he perpetrated on a bear last fall on the oak-covered slopes of Mount Baker. Tecumseh and a young brave he had with him for the purpose of giving him a few lessons in bear-killing left Toppenish late in the fall, and in a day or two were, with their pack-horses well into the country where bear were known to be plentiful.

One evening, as they came into a green little vale where the luxuriant grasses afforded cropping for their horses, they killed a deer and made camp. The night threatened to be a rainy one, so they pitched their camp beneath the wide-spreading branches of an old oak tree, where they would be somewhat sheltered from the rain, as well as provided for fuel for camp fires. They hung the deer to the limb of the tree, built a fire, cooked their supper, then spread their blankets separately some ten feet above the fire on the sloping hillside.

Soon after they had wrapped themselves well in their blankets there came a heavy shower of rain. The oak wood they had used for their camp fire had burned down into a fine glowing bed of embers. The rain that now fell had the effect of smothering out all outside evidence of the bed of coals, but they were there just the same, as the evidence soon developed.

"About midnight," Tecumseh says, "there was something doing. Glancing out from beneath the covers, I saw the biggest bear that ever grew walking down the hillside between me and the other fellow. He was so big I did not breathe. He got down pretty close to the fire, then I guess he smelled us, for he turned around, let out a growl, sat upon his haunches and showed fight. The clouds had gone and the moon shone out so I could see him mighty plain—too plain.

Here—Tecumseh's broken English failed to describe what took place, but it seems that the bear, when he got the man-smell, got mad and hoisted himself on his haunches ready for a fight, evidently making no calculations as to what he was going to sit down in. His tail quickly worked down through the outer coat of dead ashes. Not to be outdone the under coat of ashes quickly worked up through the tail. To say here Bruin got mad would be putting it mildly.

for he let out a roar that shook the hills about.

Now, Tecumseh is an Indian who appreciates a good joke, and he doesn't hesitate to laugh when something tickles his risibilities. He laughed now, for the bear, in attempting to extricate his tail from the perilous position, stepped full back into the glowing bed of coals. Then a circus contortionist never made a bigger fool of himself than did that bear. Discarding all dignity he proceeded to put to the bad the cause of his discomfort. With a Jim Jeffries swing the bear's big right paw swept down into that bed of coals, throwing them right and left down the hillside, causing a pyrotechnic display that was something beautiful but the more Bruin fooled with the fire the more he got burned, and the more he burned the more entertaining he became, amusing the staid old Indian with his contortions and gymnastics in a manner highly gratifying.

The noise Bruin made awoke the young Indian. He was a Carlisle man, and the reputation of being somewhat of a sprinter, but no effort of his on the athletic field ever equaled in speech the move he made now to reach a limb that hung out from the tree invitingly near the ground. With a gymnastic dexterity that made the bear pause and gaze with wonder the young Indian swung himself up into the tree. In the meantime Mr. Bear had about cleaned up his foe, the fire, and now decided to turn his attention to Tecumseh, who had been so audacious as to laugh loudly at the bear's discomfort. Now, Tecumseh is an old man, and he didn't propose that any young Carlisle should show him any pointers on getting up a tree. In the friendly branches of a near-by scrub oak Tecumseh spent the next three hours waiting for daylight to come and the bear to go. When morning did come courage returned to the two hunters. They took up the trail which Tecumseh said was easily followed by the odor of burnt hair. At 10 o'clock they found Bruin, and Tecumseh avers, without cracking a smile, that the bear was sitting with his tail well imbedded in the waters of a mountain stream—Toppenish (Wash.) Cor. TELLS TALE OF PIRACY.

Cabin Boy, Cook and Sailor Charged With Murder of Ship's Officers.

Victoria, B. C., April 9.—Roeking with the atmosphere of the days of pirates, recalling the swish of the cutlass and the plank walking days of the sea wolves, is the story brought by the steamship Marama, which reached this port last night. The tale is that of the ill-fated schooner Neuvre Tigre, of Callao, flying the Italian flag. Jackson, a 14-year-old cabin boy, forced to work by the pirates, has made a confession, officers of the Marama say.

"The ship was fourteen miles off Callao," the boy said, "when Joseph Mortimer, the cook, rushed at the mate with a hatchet. He felled him, but the mate jumped up and took to the rigging. There he hung like a treed coon, afraid to come down and he could not go higher. Then the cook waited at the companionway for the skipper. When the old man emerged the Belgian cracked him on the head with the hatchet. Then he turned his attention to the mate. He got a gun and, aiming at the mate, ordered him to jump overboard. The mate had little choice, but preferred to drown. So he leaped into the sea. Then the cook turned to the skipper, who had partially recovered from the blow. 'Overboard with you,' yelled the Belgian. The skipper begged hard, but it was no use. The Belgian kicked him into the sea. I threw him a plank, and was threatened with death for the act. But I promised to work and I was permitted to remain."

The vessel, with her nose turned to Australia, was wrecked off the Gilbert group and the mutinous crew, the cook, J. Taylor, and the cabin boy, got ashore. The vessel was found by the Marama and the murder and piracy was reported at Suva, where the three were arrested. They may be sent to Callao for trial. The skipper and the mate owned the ship.

THEATRICAL NOTES

At the Kentucky.

"A Saviour's Romance" is the bill tonight at the Kentucky, by the Mills company; a play in which Mr. Nat Goodwin starred for several seasons. It is sure to be one of the most pleasing of their repertoire. Tomorrow night the ladies will be admitted free under usual conditions, to see the beautiful old love story, "East Lynne," and on Saturday night the feature production will be repeated by special request of B. M. Moseley, president of the Central Labor union: "Man's Inhumanity." This will give all classes of labor a chance to see this great production—the story of capital and labor.

The only harmless fools are those in the hands of the undertaker.

The unusual sight of three little harbor tugs taking a barge of coal each from a big tow passing the city in mid river was witnessed yesterday when the tugs, Hosmer, Kuttawa and Mary N. went out to meet the W. W. O'Neil, a big towboat carrying a tow of forty pieces to New Orleans for the Pittsburg Coal company. The little boats received the Paducah consignment without delaying the big tow to any extent.

The river is steadily creeping up, the water on the gage showing a stage of 37.4 this morning, which is a rise of 1.3 since yesterday. The Egan came in last night from River-ton, Ala., making the trip in the record breaking time of 16 hours. Capt. Grace Davis was in the conning tower.

The Reaper left this morning for the mines after a tow of coal for the West Kentucky Coal company. Captains Adell and Smith were her pilots. The Helen Blair came in yesterday on her return trip from Shiloh, where she carried excursionists to the annual celebration. Capt. Boyce Berryman, who was assistant to Capt. Guy Walker, the Blair's pilot, returned this morning and resumed his regular duties on the Dick Fowler.

The Mildred is due in from Colbert shoals today. It is rumored in river circles today that Capt. William Blincoe resigned his position as pilot on the Dick Fowler.

The Martha Hennen went to Joppa this morning with a tow of ties. The Dick Fowler got out with colors flying for Cairo this morning.

The Royal enjoyed big business yesterday and today on its regular trips from Golconda to Paducah.

The John S. Hopkins was the Evansville packet today.

The Scotia is in from the Tennessee with ties.

The I. N. Hook gets out today for the Cumberland after ties. The Condor went back light to Joppa this morning after bringing in a tow yesterday.

Official Forecasts.

The Ohio at Evansville, will begin falling this afternoon or tonight, and fall for several days. At Mt. Vernon, will continue rising for 12 hours then fall. At Paducah and Cairo, will continue rising three days, reaching 39 feet at Paducah, and 44 feet at Cairo by Saturday.

The Tennessee at Florence will fall during the next 36 hours. At River-ton, not much change tonight, then fall. At Johnsonville, will continue rising 24 to 36 hours.

The Mississippi from below St. Louis to Cairo, will continue rising for two days.

The Wabash at Mt. Carmel, will rise slightly during the next 36 hours.

LUMBER FIRM FINED $20,000.

Clemency Asked on Ground That Clerk Accepted Rebates.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 9.—Judge Knappen, of the United States district court, sentenced the Stearns Salt and Lumber company, of Ludington, Mich., to pay a fine of $20,000 for accepting rebates from the Pere Marquette railroad on lumber shipments. The fine was imposed upon President Pustuc S. Stearns, representing the company. The company was indicted by the March federal grand jury on 20 counts charging acceptance of rebates from the Pere Marquette railroad on lumber shipments from Ludington to Toledo.

Two weeks ago the company entered a plea of guilty. Clemency was asked on the ground that the rebates were accepted for the company by clerks without the knowledge of the company itself. The rebates amounted to only a few hundred dollars.

Judge Knappen in passing sentence inflicted the minimum fine of $1,000 on each count, making $20,000 in all. The maximum possibility was a fine of $400,000.
